Data shows Taliban attacks climbed in past year

WASHINGTON (Reuters) - The number of attacks in Afghanistan by the Taliban in the last quarter of 2020 were higher than the same period the year before, a U.S. watchdog agency said on Monday after recent accusations by President Joe Biden's administration that the Taliban has failed to live up to commitments needed for a U.S. withdrawal.

The February 2020 agreement between the Taliban and the United States calls for a complete withdrawal of U.S. troops by May 2021 in return for the insurgents fulfilling security guarantees.

While Biden has not formally changed the May deadline, officials have said the Taliban has not been living up to its commitments under the deal and the higher than they were last quarter, and 'much higher' than in the same quarter a year prior," the report said.

It added that despite the violence, casualties this quarter were down 14% compared with the previous quarter and down 5% in 2020 compared with 2019.

An Afghan peace ministry official suffered light injuries in a bomb blast in Kabul on Monday.

The Taliban and the Afghan government have been negotiating in Qatar to reach a peace deal. Those talks resumed in January after an almost month-long break, but negotiators and diplomats say there has since been little progress.

Reuters reported on Sunday that international troops plan to stay in Afghanistan beyond the May deadline, a move that could escalate tensions.

Judge dismisses SIFA eviction lawsuit

By Jojo Santo Tomas
Pacific Daily News

Superior Court of Guam Magistrate Judge Jonathan R. Quan on Wednesday dismissed a nearly year-old eviction lawsuit filed against Science is Fun and Awesome, SIFA, Learning Academy Charter School by landlord Eagle Land Holdings LLC.

"The Court finds...that Eagle Land Holdings failed to prove that it properly served SIFA with the statutorily required summons and therefore the Court hereby grants SIFA's Motion to Dismiss," Quan said in a March 19 order.

Quan, in his order, said he will not dismiss the case over the two other grounds that SIFA raised: statutory immunity, and insufficient pre-suit notice.

Eagle Land Holdings filed the complaint on April 25, 2024, seeking to evict SIFA from its property and to recover about $1.6 million in unpaid rent.

Since its inception in 2018, SIFA has had a contract to occupy the property where their school campus sits. Even though the contract expired on June 30, 2023, the school continues to operate and occupy the land.

It has been on a month-to-month arrangement since, against the landlord's wishes.

"We are happy with the decision to dismiss the case based on (Quan's) insight. We are pleased with that," said Anthony J. Sunga, CEO of the academy. "Our focus is how do we move forward into the next school year and in the years ahead, again, hoping to move past the litigation phase."

What started as an unlawful detainer or eviction case was interrupted by other factors.

SIFA attorney Michael Phillips first argued that SIFA was a government entity and therefore any claims had to follow the established Government Claims Act. Quan issued a decision that stated otherwise.

The eviction proceedings remained on the back burner as issues of jurisdiction arose, as well as a pending judgement on another motion by the defense to dismiss the case entirely.

Phillips based his motion on three grounds: statutory immunity from lawsuit, invalid pre-trial notice of its arrears and lastly, a failure to properly serve SIFA with a summons as required by law.

Quan shot down the first two arguments, the second one plausible because the landlord demanded more than one year's rent, which would render the notice invalid.

But Quan said the law did not apply in this case, and in his research, actually fortified the landlord's claim that SIFA was guilty of unlawful detainer.

In the end, it came down to a mystery signature.

The landlord said it had properly served a summons on the school, showing a signature on the date it was served. It further argued that since SIFA had attended every hearing, then the message was certainly conveyed.

But school officials could not recognize the signature. A proof of service filed with the court does not exist, Phillips argued.

Jon Ramos, attorney for the landlord, had a copy of the signed summons but not a proof of service filed within the court.

Ramos said at the time his client was prepared to deal with the court's decision, however it decides.

"The plaintiffs...they've been prejudiced. And they just want some kind of resolution in this matter, your honor," Ramos said.

Eagle Land Holdings originally operated not only as the school's landlord, but also as a vendor, providing various services such as meals, internet, equipment, and maintenance, according to a copy of the lease agreement.

The school has since absorbed those operations.

On the issue of back rent, Sunga said the school has yet to receive an invoice, which is required for the school to seek reimbursement from the Government of Guam. He said he is actively trying to negotiate with the landlord to determine what is owed and what is requested.

SIFA continues the current academic school year with an enrollment of about 500 middle school students, plus a waiting list of students who want to enroll. The school employs 52 people, half of whom are faculty teachers.

While the school continues to operate its curriculum focused on science technology, engineering art and math, STEAM, it has recognized areas where it needs improvement and change. The school is addressing a growing need to develop social emotional development for the student body, he said.

Vendor payment delays, other fiscal issues persist at GMH

By Julianne Hernandez
Pacific Daily News

Senators during Wednesday's oversight hearing on the Guam Memorial Hospital demanded immediate reforms in light of persistent vendor payment delays, delays in critical infrastructure projects and other financial challenges.

Sen. Sabrina Salas Matanane, health committee chair, condemned the hospital's mishandling of its finances.

"I've only been in office for a little over two months, and GMH lost $10 million out of $20 million in [American Rescue Plan Act] funds because, according to [Bureau of Budget and Management Research], it didn't follow U.S. Treasury guidelines," Salas Matanane said. "Let me be clear. I am not saying I do not want to work together, but I am saying y'all need to get it together."

The $10 million shortfall in ARP funds, originally designated for capital improvement projects, has raised serious concerns about the hospital's ability to address its infrastructure needs. Much of the money was directed toward settling outstanding vendor bills, while some was used for capital improvement plans.

Salas Matanane also read a statement from a longtime vendor, with more than 20 years of experience working with GMHA, who expressed frustration over payment delays that have made doing business with the hospital increasingly unprofitable.

"Whatever small profits we receive are used to pay bank interest, which are now 9.5%," Salas Matanane said.

GMHA chief financial officer Yuka Hechanova said payment delays were due to cash flow issues.

"It's just whatever we collect and the urgency of the payment," Hechanova said. "I have a very small accounts payable staff, they're assigned 50 or 100 vendors each. So I try to make sure that they at least respond to the vendors and let them know when they'll get paid how much they'll get paid and not make any promises that we can't keep. But it's been a cash flow issue. That's what our problem is."

Along with financial strain, GMHA faces growing pressure to expedite its capital improvement projects.

The George Washington High School robotics team arriving back on Guam on Feb. 11, 2025, after placing fifth out of 28 teams from across the nation and earning third place in alliance. This achievement marks a significant milestone as it was the first time the team represented the school in a national robotics competition.

ing to see all the other bots. I really wanted to see how the competition would build their bots," he said. "There were some surprising bots that I didn't expect to see, that weren't copying, or that were like taking a whole step out of the norm, and we're gonna take some inspiration from this."

For Macaraeg, the experience was especially meaningful as it marked his first time leaving the island.

"It was absolutely astonishing," he said. "There were so many things that I didn't know were possible, like, until I got over there even the weather was crazy different. It was like sticking my head into a fridge every time I walked outside."

Team captain Francisca Dilla shared her excitement about seeing a variety of robots at the competition.

"Seeing all the different types of robots that were built was truly mesmerizing. Seeing all the different ideas that many other people have was really cool," she said.

As the only female on the team, Dilla was delighted to see other women in leadership roles.

"Our alliance, the team captain, was a female, but she wasn't the only one in the team," Dilla said. "It was really cool just to see that other females are into STEM and that they really were in that leadership position. It was comforting knowing that there were other females there who were also in that leadership position, not only me."

Master driver Caleb Chugrad spoke about his experience behind the wheel during the competition and credited his teammates.

"Without these guys, I couldn't have done anything," Chugrad said. "These guys really calmed my nerves, and during the day of competition, it showed. Not only was I driving, but I also had my right-hand man and left-hand man guiding me through the way. Everything that we did was not only for our school but for the people of Guam. To have made a name for ourselves, it feels great."

Student engineer Josh Unsiog talked about the differences between their robot and others.

"Our robot was really different, especially with our intake system. While everyone else had their intake over, ours was under. That's something we noticed," he said. "American Samoa, their robot was the top feeding, where they had their chains go over and I learned a lot about how they achieved that, because it's different. It taught us a lot about their robot, especially about how they managed their chains, and we applied some of that to our design."

Logistics and navigator

Micah-Zen Diaz share his role behind the scene to ensure everything ran smoothly.

"I was accountable for writing everything down and making sure our drive was directed the right way," Diaz said.

With this experience under their belts, the team remains focused on future success.

"We're not done. We still have the remote skills competition," Diaz said. "If we do get accepted, we expect to not only come back with a better robot and better mindset but to come back with a win."

The seniors collectively agreed that this experience is not just about their success but about inspiring future generations.

"I'm really thankful for our instructor and teacher for giving us this opportunity," Dilla said. "We can wait to represent Guam again, just like we did."

Re: BILL NO. 169-37 (COR) - AN ACT TO AMEND §§ 14101, 14102, AND 14103 OF CHAPTER 14, TITLE 18, GUAM CODE ANNOTATED, RELATIVE TO MANDATING THE PUBLICATION OF FINANCIAL INFORMATION BY NONPROFIT ORGANIZATIONS

Hafa Adai Madam Speaker,

Bill No. 169-37 (COR) eliminates the requirement that non-profit organizations publish their financial information in a newspaper of general circulation, and instead requires organizations to file their financial reports with the Director of the Department of Revenue and Taxation ("DRT") for publication to the DRT's website. Non-profit agencies play a pivotal role in our community, providing important services, contributing financial support, and, ultimately, improving the lives of our people. This bill will enable the public to more easily obtain the financial information of nonprofit organizations, utilizing DRT's website, and donors can readily access how their generous contributions are being managed. The bill will also enable more efficient creation, transmission, and storage of this information.

For these reasons, I sign Bill No. 169-37 (COR) into law as Public Law No. 37-63

Sensement,

LOURDES A. LEON GUERRERO
Maga'hagan Guahan
Governor of Guam
